DEMOGRAPHIC STATISTICS

■ AB ROAD ■ WESTERN ROAD
■ EASTERN ROAD ■ BOLD ROAD
■ RIVER SIDE ■ SQUASH ROAD

Indore was a river side settlement of merchants and local traders. Pilgrimage routes link the foundation of the settlement.

The military route link accelerated the growth of the city. The growth center shifted from the river side to the admin center (Indore 2).

The street (now Jawahar Marg) connecting the admin center, rejoined to the military settlement (forward) developed as commercial hub of the city. The residential area grew up parallel to the central street, road.

After the growth of the military barracks and British residency area on the rail spine act as a condition on commercial growth, which led to the development of new commercial spine (new m.g road) parallel to the earlier one connecting towards directly to military route, (AB road)

LAND USE OF INDORE

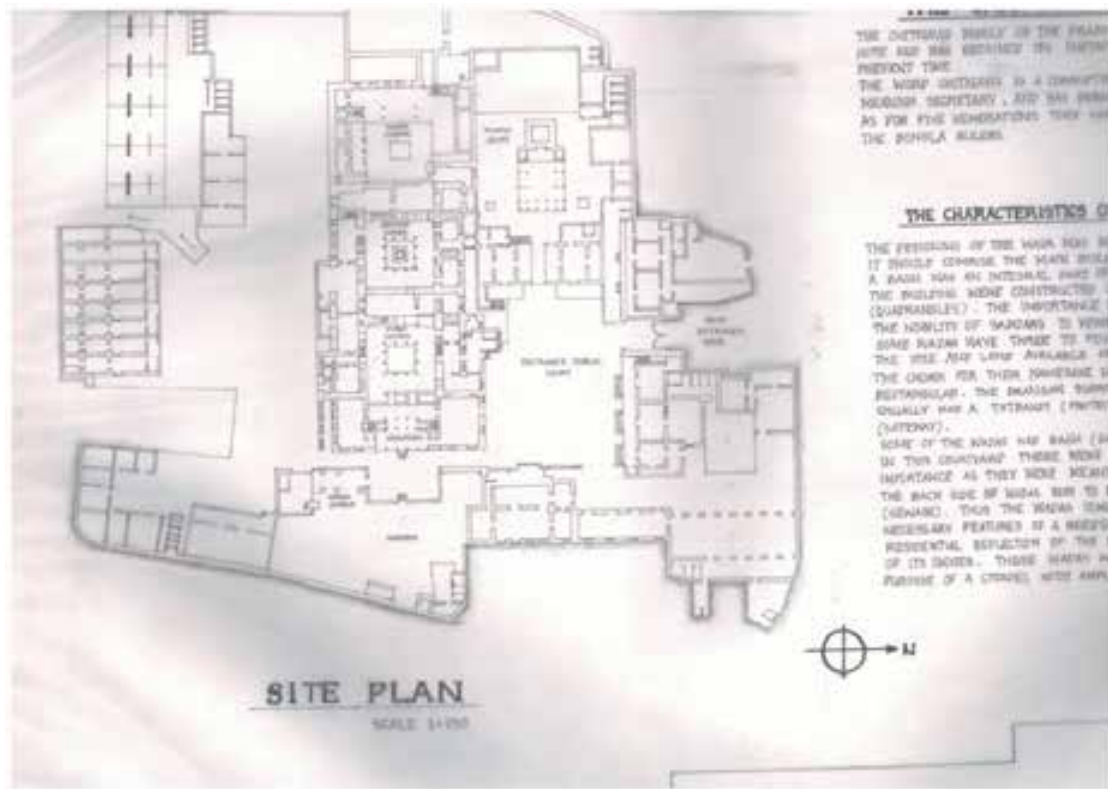

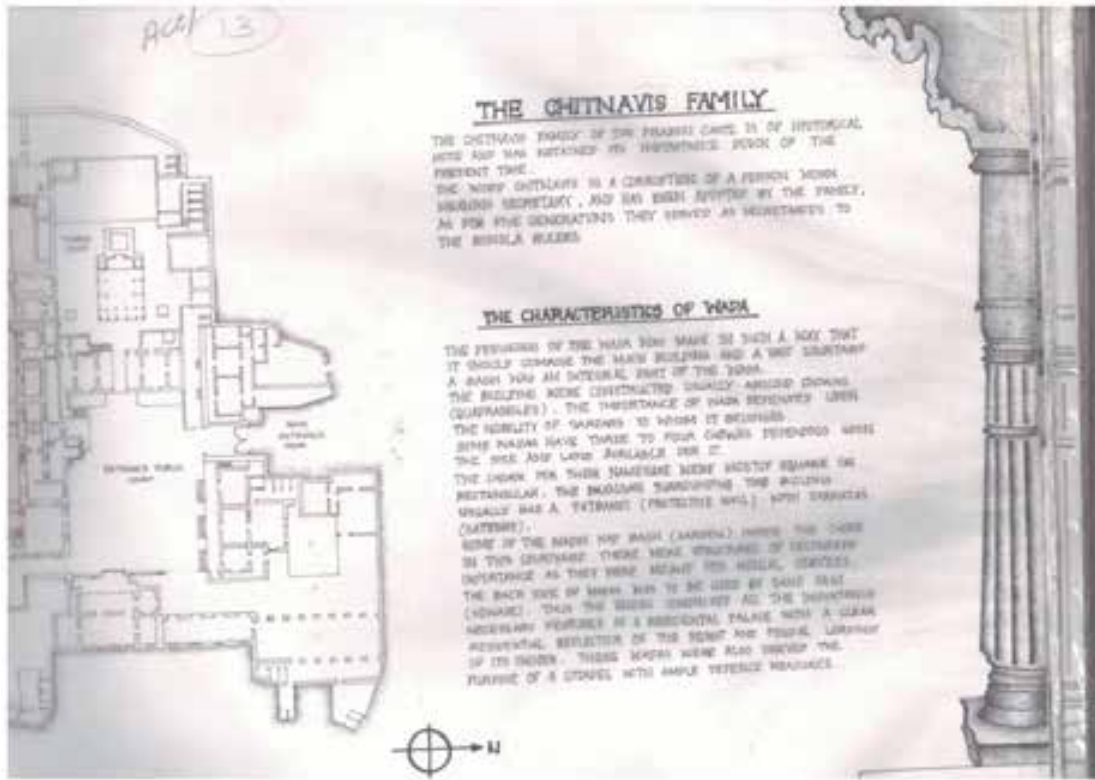

Natural barriers of steep land with hills have restricted the growth of Indore towards the west and therefore the city has extended itself in the eastern direction, but these physical constraints are no barriers for post-urban development now. Industrial areas and informal sectors have developed in the northern parts, while middle and high income districts are to the south.
